

Have fun and make a big difference!

Volunteer for Super Science Saturday October 24, 2009

What is this event? Super Science Saturday (SSS) is a public science celebration that draws thousands of excited and appreciative children, families, and others to the Mesa Lab to explore science and the work that we do at NCAR. This event is carefully planned by the UCAR Office of Education and Outreach (EO) with support from many other people, UCAR/NCAR programs, and external educational organizations.

What do volunteers do? Staff from across the institution make SSS fun, meaningful, and informative by sharing just 2 to 3 consecutive hours between 10 AM and 4 PM.

EO will provide explanations and training, if needed. Volunteers can choose to:

- Greet people and provide general information
- Engage kids in simple educational activities
- Perform science demonstrations
- Serve as science experts

How can I volunteer? Please contact Laura Allen for information (llallen@ucar.edu or x2408).
